The burial of Uran wetlands has disturbed the fragile ecological balance here as the migratory and local birds are forced to struggle for landing places for roosting and nesting.

In fact, the Karal Gram Panchayat has in July appealed to Uran

Now, all of a sudden, the landfill has started and the water body will disappear if the authorities do not interfere, Kumar said in his complaint.

Countdown timer at Vashi APMC Market traffic signal display numbers in English again

The numbers were displayed in Marathi for one week

By Abhitash D. Singh

The countdown timer at Vashi APMC Market signal which had been displaying in Marathi for nearly one week has again started displaying in English. Earlier there was discussion in the city that the Navi Mumbai Municipal Corporation (NMMC) was planning to install Marathi countdown timer at few traffic signals on trial basis but a senior official from NMMC electric department said that it was a technical glitch and there is no such plan to install Marathi countdown timer because Navi Mumbai is a cosmopolitan city.

Speaking with the Newsband, the NMMC electric department officer on the condition of anonymity informed, "As of now, there is no plan to install Marathi countdown timers in the satellite city because people from all walks of life and states stay in the city. The countdown timer was displayed in Marathi from last one week but it was due to some software issue. We have no intention of switching the language from English to Marathi."

Now all the countdown timers in the satellite are displaying the numbers in English, said an official.

Bittu Singh, a resident of Vashi said, "I myself noticed the countdown timer in Marathi at Vashi APMC Market traffic signal for at least three days. But, now the countdown timer is again displaying numbers in English."

Inspire: The saga of Snehalaya

By Dr. Vandana Mahajani

They only live, who live for others, the rest are more dead than alive. - Swami Vivekananda. This thought had been imbibed by Dr. Girish Kulkarni quiet early in life.

Girish Kulkarni grew up in Ahmednagar enjoying life in a middle-class, loving, and supportive family. Although he was doing well academically, at the age of eight his parents enrolled him in after-school Math and English classes.

Going to the class took him through one of the city's red-light areas, area children were generally forbidden to enter. He regularly saw girls his own age sitting outside brothels selling their bodies to the highest bidder. Even at this young age, the injustice of being born into a poor situation had a profound impact on him as he appreciated his own 'luck' at being able to go to school, have food in his stomach, and loving parents to protect him from the horrors these girls faced every day.

He questioned it constantly and saw the full impact of their misery when he witnessed a naked child being beaten and tortured with chilies rubbed on her genitals. Her crime? She had contracted syphilis and was no longer able to work. The young Girish felt powerless to help and his inability to intervene haunted him into early adulthood.

When Girish started college he made many friends, including one with a home in the red-light area. He found their 15-year-old sister and mother in her 40s both employed as female sex workers alongside their 70-year-old grandmother who was also selling her services for the price of a cup of tea. Again, Girish didn't know how he could help.

He had been involved with Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad for almost 10 years. As a part of it he met many good leaders, he travelled the whole country, saw its problems and understood the people and their pain. He realized that people gathered for dance and drama, or simple snake shows why we cannot gather them to listen to good talk. It started happening.

In 1986 he went to meet Anna Hazare, Baba not now, then when? If not me, then who? were haunting him.

Finding answers to these questions finally lead to action. Inspired by the Gandhian philosophy of serving the last people in society and recognising the injustice of a community forced into sex workers his mind questioned "How can I change the lives of at least a few people?"

In 1988 he first visited the red light area and expressed his wish to help. He faced great difficulties. He approached

In 1988 he completed his studies. Did M.A, Ph.D in political science. His family suggested he becomes an IAS, enter system and work for people. But Girish had this dream of working himself for the deprived sections. Government system was not the solution.

Two questions: If the sex workers to ask how he could help and wanting nothing for themselves they said, "Take our children".

Girish taught these children prayers and told them stories at first. So, each day Girish would turn up to pick up two children and take them to a park, buy them snacks, tell them stories about ghosts or teach them how to ride bicycles. Word soon spread and within four months he was entertaining 100 children!!! Now mang-

The sacrificing superheroes

Much of what we study in school and college is forgotten over the years (some of it immediately after our examinations). It is almost as though a bottle of water is poured over our minds, wiping out and erasing all that we have learned.

However, as a student of literature, there are some poems that have left an indelible mark on my heart - a few lines that have remained with me even after decades. They continue to haunt me because they are timeless, universal and thought provoking, even though they were written in another era in another part of the world.

As I read about the unfortunate and untimely demise of General Bipin Rawat, our first Chief of Defence Staff of the Indian Armed Forces, and the others who passed away in the recent helicopter crash, the lines came back to haunt me.

These poems were written over a hundred years ago, but are still poignant and moving because they describe the thoughts of a soldier reflecting on his life. The poem by Rupert Brooke entitled 'The Soldier' based on the First World War begins thus:

"If I should die, think only this of me:

That there is some corner in a foreign field,

That is forever England."

The soldier overcomes his fear of dying away from his homeland by recognizing that his death will ensure that a part of his country is buried in a foreign land - and that will give him a sense of satisfaction because in some way his death will signify victory.

Another touching poem 'Strange Meeting' by Wilfred Owen talks about the futility of war where two soldiers from opposing nations meet in Hell, and one says to the other "I am the enemy you killed my friend". They have no cause to mourn, "save the undone years. The hopelessness..."

The life of a soldier can send shivers down one's spine. It requires incredible courage to take the first plunge and jump into a well, not knowing whether or not one will be able to return unscathed. It requires tremendous will power and determination to serve one's nation, endangering one's life and that of one's family consciously,

knowingly, deliberately...

While a number of films attempt to give an insight into the emotions and struggles of a soldier, causing our hair to stand on end, no book, poem, song, or movie can ever capture what a soldier and the family go through every living minute of their lives. It is unfathomable, and one cannot even begin to empathize because we as civilians inhabit a completely different universe. We can sleep in peace because there is someone out there who is spending sleepless nights protecting us, whose family lives under constant threat, danger and uncertainty of a tomorrow that may never arrive.

No words of gratitude can never be enough to repay the debt of their sacrifice - they are truly noble souls who will always remain etched in our memories as sources of inspiration, strength and an indomitable spirit of resilience.

Vodafone-Idea Company looting customers

In the last eighteen months, the Vodafone-Idea Company have increased their recharging rates for 28 days from Rs 35 to Rs 49 to Rs 79 to Rs 99 just because the Vodafone-Idea Company is going into huge losses. Shame on the management for looting us. And recharging is a 'must' every 28 days. If one does not recharge their mobile, then the number is allotted to someone else. This is ridiculous because I hardly make calls.

State govt. gives ultimatum to MSRTC workers

Report to work by Monday or else face action: Anil Parab, Transport Minister

By Chandrashekhar Hendve

The state government has given an ultimatum to the striking employees of the Maharashtra State Road Transport Corporation (MSRTC). The workers have been asked to report to work by Monday or else face action under the Maharashtra Essential Services Maintenance Act (MESMA) or under other legal norms.

Transport Minister Anil Parab said the government or MSRTC will not take any action against the striking employees from retrospective effect. He, however, stressed that if the suspended employees report to work by Monday, their suspension will be revoked. However, if they fail to do so then action will be initiated against them. MSRTC has already suspended 10,000 employees for defying the orders while continuing their participation in a month-long strike.

Parab said the orders to revoke the suspension are being issued on Friday but insisted that those suspended employees should report to work by Monday.

"I spoke to all ST depot controllers who are being approached by some employees that they want to report to work but are being stopped. On the other hand, the suspended employees also approached them with a plea to revoke the suspension and give them another chance. A majority of the officers are of the view that those suspended employees should be given one opportunity and, therefore, I have appealed to them to report to work by Monday," said Parab.

He said that the suspended employees after reporting to work will be deployed in depots which will function with 50% capacity while others will be accommodated in the adjoining depots.

ST workers have called an indefinite strike demanding the merger of ST Corporation with the state government. The strike has been going on for more than a month now. The Transport Minister said that the committee appointed by the court in this regard is expected to submit a preliminary report during the hearing on December 20. The final report on the merger will be submitted to the High Court within 12 weeks, i.e. around 20 January 22. Parab reiterated that the government will take a decision on MSRTC's merger after the court ruling.

Navi Mumbai gets the much-needed pet corner

The Navi Mumbai Municipal Corporation (NMMC) has inaugurated the satellite city's first pet corner at Vashi on the demand of the pet parents. The initiative is a part of Swachh Sarvekshan 2022 and will go a long way in making the city become known as a pet friendly city. The pet corner will surely reflect how the canines in the city are being treated and have been given dedicated places for their natural calls. The initiative is commendable and credit goes to the civic body for setting a benchmark for many others to follow.

The pet park comes at a great time. Like we and the rest of the nation, continues to feel the effects of the coronavirus, the park offers a low-risk option for the residents to get outside with their furry family member for their natural call.

The park has been designed with a basic facility for the dogs to poop. The premise also has facilities like dustbins and scoopers, which will be helpful for the pet owners to pick up the waste and put it in the dustbin. A user has to manually pick up the waste of their dog after they excrete in the sand. This park is essential in terms of cleanliness as even if people pick up the poop from the road, the marks remain on the road and spread a foul smell. To deal with that problem they have come up with this unique concept.

NMMC has decided to provide ten such pet corners across the city. This is indeed the need of the hour and will go a long way in ensuring that the footpaths of the city remain clean.

ing the kids was challenging. They started calling him Baba, Nana, dada, it emotionally attached him to the children. The burden of love was growing.

Leftover food from wedding parties was also distributed to those who had no work on a day. Children started respecting their mothers as they learnt to touch her feet. Women felt empowered now and they revolted against people who misused their positions.

Snehalaya started when number of children increased. Girish ji says "I never reacted to problems, but responded." His parents supported fully by giving their home as place to stay, then came the women, old prostitutes to take care of them. Charity begins at home. And it happened.

He wanted other people to join him. At first people promised, they came a day and next day they had excuses. So he stopped following people. He realized that those who genuinely wanted to work would come under any circumstances.

Swami Vivekananda said "When crores of poor people are dying of hunger, I will call every man a traitor who acquired education at the cost of poor but did not bother about them. We should change our attitude towards the poor."

Girish ji stared working day and night to get provisions in form of food clothing etc needed by them. It was never an effort for him. It gave him joy.

Anti trafficking for child prostitution was next challenge. He had to face criminals. In one case a 16 year old was exploited by 20 people. Those involved were police, hotel owners, and business men. He finally won the case after a war of 8 years, and the guilty got double life imprisonment as punishment.

"The poor and the miserable are for our salvation, so that we may serve the Lord, coming in the shape of the diseased, coming in the shape of the lunatic, the leper, and the sinner! Bold are my words; and let me repeat that it is the greatest privilege in our life that we are allowed to serve the Lord in all these shapes."

we are unable to do so it would be really very unfortunate. Today what is lacking is leadership among youth. Communal forces are getting stronger by the day. niti se jyada rajniti aa gayi hai. That's unfortunate".

Presently a rally has been planned with the intention of interacting with youth. Rally will culminate in Bangladesh. They hope to learn a lot from this country, like micro financing. He hopes that each youth can become a lamp if not the sun.

Today, Snehalaya works across 17 projects, that over 100,000 people have benefited from, saving countless lives and giving dignity back to those marginalised by society.

To conclude, as Swami Vivekananda says "Religions of the world have become lifeless mockeries. What the world wants is character. The world is in need of those whose life is one burning love, selfless. That love will make every word tell like thunderbolt" Let us learn from the life of Dr. Girish Kulkarni.

Get ready for more restrictions if not vaccinated fully

Maha govt thinks of imposing strict restrictions on those who have not taken both doses of Covid-19 vaccine

By Abhitash D. Singh

Amidst omicron scare, the Maharashtra government has decided to impose more restrictions on citizens who have not been fully vaccinated against Covid-19. An official from the state health department informed that those who have not taken the second jab of the vaccine will face more restrictions and a decision regarding the same would be announced soon.

As per the state health department, more than 1.75 crore citizens in the state have not received their second dose of vaccine, and this raises the risk of infection spread.

The senior officials from the state government have appealed to the citizens to get vaccinated on priority basis. Warning has also been issued that if both the vaccines are not received, then the individuals will have to face additional restrictions, as curbs will be imposed selectively.

Deputy Chief Minister of Maharashtra Ajit Pawar while speaking with the media personnel on Thursday said, "All the eligible citizens in the state should support the government in fighting the virus and choosing not to get vaccinated is not an option. To strengthen the same, the government has been deciding on certain restrictions, which will restrict their activities in the state. Strict steps will be taken only to encourage citizens to get vaccinated as directed."

It should be noted that the state health department over the last several months, has worked hard to procure the vaccines for the citizens, and with enough doses available, citizens who haven't taken the second dose, have been appealed to get vaccinated.

As per the state health department data only 4.37 crore people out of the 12.03 crore have been fully vaccinated. This implies that over 7 crore have only taken their first dose of the vaccine

Pawar further added, "The government may ask the district administration to restrict the entry of people who have not taken their second shot into government and private offices, at malls and shopping complexes. In addition, the district administration may direct ration shops, gas agencies and petrol pumps to supply groceries and fuel only to those people who have taken the second jab."
